Irish, 9th or 10th century

Gerald Barry's The coming of winter is a setting of an Irish poem dating from the 9th or 10th century, and was commissioned for the 34th Seminar on Contemporary Choral Music at University College, Cork in May 1997. The setting is notable for its idiosyncratic use of text, not only are the words of the poem sung both forwards and backwards but the second half of the piece is given over to percussive syncopation.

The coming of winter and other choral music by Gerald Barry performed by Chamber Choir Ireland / Paul O'Keefe is available on the CD "Barry meets Beethoven" from Orchid Classics.

Other choral works by Gerald Barry:
